

Art for Induction

Monday 1st July 2019

13:00—16:00

Hopwood Hall College, Rochdale Campus

Trainer: Arts for Wellbeing Design Team

Audience: Teachers and TAs of all Key Stages

Art for Induction is a therapeutic arts based resource specifically designed to support schools with settling new arrivals. It was commissioned by the Equalities Team and produced by experienced Art for Wellbeing practitioners from Cartwheels Arts using the Design-Thinking ideology that embeds a clear understanding of individual experience into the development process. It is a fully researched and tested resource that was co-produced with children who have experience in starting school after migrating from their home countries.

The resource is designed for use across key stages and offers a range of differentiated material to suit individual need.

This training session will prepare a member of staff to disseminate the training back at school.

What will be covered during the training?

- Research behind the practice
- An introduction to the pack
- Using the pack effectively
- Feeling comfortable with the levels of art-making
- Troubleshooting and problem-solving
